Pratiche abstract

Description

The idea is to modify, by innovating it, the firewood sales system, diversifying the assortments, packaging, delivery sizes, ordering and delivery methods, working on creating a network of companies that leads to end customer not only wood, but in case it is required, a more thorough service. At the same time, the partnership provides exchange and growth opportunities for businesses, professional firms and public administrations that are part of it in various capacities. The main objective is to improve the economic performance of the forestry companies involved, but with positive effects on the whole sector.

The innovation of the design idea can be summarized in the following points: - creation of a business network to guarantee the growth of the sales area, the availability of a wide range of wood energy assortments, capable of responding to the diversified demand for a dynamic market; - new tools and ordering methods, home delivery and storage of the products ordered to meet a growing need for a part of the market: website dedicated to the corporate network, apps for mobile devices; - guarantee of the local origin of forest biomass, with low environmental impact, guaranteed humidity and weight, collected by local companies that operate in compliance with forest, contributory and workplace safety standards; - business network that allows the cooperation of several companies in the sector with other figures in the supply chain according to certain and shared rules; The potential of innovation is to be found in the contemporary proposition of multiple wood energy assortments in a single catalog, at known prices, with innovative and reusable packaging, combined with new tools for ordering and delivery (website, app for mobile devices).
